Join us in Co-Design of an LGBTIQA+ Lived Experience Community of Practice

What are we doing and why?

Join LEWP in our first co-design session for an LGBTIQA+ Lived Experience Community of Practice, funded through Adelaide PHN under the LGBTIQA+ Suicide Prevention Capacity Building Project. This initiative aims to build community resilience through peer-led and lived experience activities and supporting the development of the peer and lived experience workforce. We will be holding two initial workshops.

The co-design process

Your lived experience and insights are vital to shaping a Community of Practice (CoP) that is meaningful, inclusive, and impactful. By participating in these co-design workshops, you will:

- Define the CoP's purpose together: Your voice will help identify the key themes and areas of focus that truly matter.
- Design practical elements: Co-create the structure of the CoP, including how often we meet, where, and how to ensure inclusivity and accessibility for everyone.
- Plan professional development: Share your expertise to identify the training and growth opportunities that will support skill-building, empowerment, and ongoing learning.
- Develop the tools: Work with peers to draft promotional materials and an onboarding toolkit, highlighting the unique value of this CoP to both members and the wider LGBTIQA+ community.

Be involved

We value your time, expertise and experiences. Participants attending outside of their paid working roles will be reimbursed $100 per session.

- Workshop1: Thursday, 29th May, 10:00 am - 12:00 pm [Register Here]
- Workshop 2: Thursday, 5th June, 10:00 am - 12:00 pm [Register Here]

Please note that spaces are limited and we will be prioritising representation from the LGTBIQA+ communities, and diverse intersectionalities. For any questions, please contact Lizzie, our Senior Project Officer, lizzie.graham@mhcsa.org.au
